Iowa Opportunity Workforce Act

An act relating to residency qualifications for purposes of postsecondary tuition and fees paid at public institutions of higher education in Iowa.

In 2001, Texas and California were the first states to enact legislation allowing in-state tuition for undocumented immigrants. New York and Utah followed suit in 2002. In 2003 and 2004, Washington, Oklahoma, Illinois and Kansas enacted similar legislation.

The enacted state legislation generally requires:

- students have resided in the state for three years,
- graduated from a state high school,
- received notification of acceptance to a public college or university and signed an affidavit stating they will file for legal immigration status.

Texas saw its enrollment of such students increase from about 1,500 in the fall of 2001 to roughly 8,000 in 2004, said Ray Grasshoff, director of special projects for the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board.

In Kansas, where an estimated 55,000 to 85,000 undocumented immigrants reside, 221 undocumented immigrants were admitted to the state's public higher education institutions fall 2005, spokesman Kip Peterson said.

At Iowa State University resident tuition, excluding room and board, is $4,342 per year. Non resident tuition is $13,684 per year.
